GRSM Construction Group

GRSM's Construction Group consists of more than 250 lawyers nationwide who focus their practice on the comprehensive range of legal services required by all participants in the construction industry—architects, engineers, design professionals, design joint ventures, owners, developers, property managers, general contractors, subcontractors, material suppliers, product manufacturers, lenders, investors, state agencies, municipalities, and other affiliated consultants and service providers.

The strength of our construction practice builds on our depth of knowledge of the legal, technical, regulatory and business considerations specific to the construction industry. Every day, the potential liabilities of the construction industry continue to expand, the scope of government regulation deepens, and traditional transactions become more complex. As a result, it is imperative for legal counsel to have a well-rounded understanding and direct involvement in the issues that shape the construction industry.

At GRSM, our Construction Group includes lawyers who have professional training and first-hand experience in related fields such as engineering, construction management, and environmental sciences. We have practical experience working in job trailers as engineers, construction project managers, consultants, and tradesmen. Our lawyers also have leadership experience in various construction industry related trade associations, legal advisory committees, and government agencies.
